

Paul W. Wilson

Professor, Department of Economics, Clemson University

Paul W. Wilson is Professor of Economics at the University of Texas at Austin. He obtained his Ph.D. degree at Brown University in 1986 and taught at the University of Texas before joining Clemson University in 2006. He is Editor of the Journal of Productivity Analysis. His current research includes theoretical work on resampling estimators and frontier estimation, as well as empirical work on the structure of the banking and hospital industries and health-care demand. He has published articles in numerous journals, including Communications in Statistics; Econometric Theory; Economic Inquiry; Economics Letters; European Journal of Operational Research; Games and Economic Behavior; Journal of Applied Econometrics; Journal of Applied Statistics; Journal of Banking and Finance; Journal of Business and Economic Statistics; Journal of Economic Behavior and Organization; Journal of Economics and Business; Journal of Economic Theory; Journal of Monetary Economics; Journal of Money, Credit, and Banking; Journal of Productivity Analysis; Journal of Urban Economics; Management Science; National Tax Journal; Review of Economics and Statistics; Review of Financial Economics; Transportation; Transportation Research; Urban Studies; and others.

Research interests: Resampling methods; parametric and non-parametric estimation and inference in models of production; structure of the US banking and hospital industries, urban transportation and housing.

Contact information:

Department of Economics
ClemsonUniversity
Clemson,SC 29634

pww@clemson.edu